DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 3/26/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant has amended claims so that the transmission power control of the CDMA mobile communication system pertains only to the base transceiver station. Therefore, a new reference [Furukawa et al.] is introduced to meet applicant's amended claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Furukawa et al.

Regarding claim 1, Furukawa et al. discloses a base station transmission power control system and is aimed at a CDMA mobile communication power control system (paragraph 0004).

Furukawa meets the following limitations:

a central processing unit (CPU) for receiving a command from an operation to perform control operation according to the command; (inherent feature of a modern power control system within the controller –Figure 2, refs. 26 and 27)

a gain controller for outputting a gain signal according to the CPU control; (Figure 2, ref. 27 and paragraphs 141-144) and a gain variable amplifier for regulating transmission power of the BTS by varying according to the gain signal of the gain controller. (Figure 2, ref. 29 and paragraphs 141-144)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Furukawa et al.

Regarding claims 2 and 5, Furukawa discloses a method for controlling a base station transmission power control in a CDMA mobile communication system as discussed above for claim 1. Furukawa is silent regarding gain steps of the amplifier for a given situation.

However, the examiner takes Official Notice that it is well known to utilize a 3 dB increase in step size for a first power control level and a second power control level and that it would have been obvious for Furukawa to utilize these discreet steps as these provide a discernable difference.

Regarding claim 3, the examiner takes Official Notice that it is well known to utilize a gain regulator with a variable gain amplifier and that it would have been obvious to modify Furukawa to include a gain regulator so that the output result is as desired.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4 and 5 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

Regarding claim 4, a method of base station transmission power control where the base station determines whether a power control request received is a first power control or a second power control and re-regulating the transmission power of the BTS by varying the gain of an amplifier according to the determining result was neither found, suggested, nor made evident by the prior art.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

Art Unit: 2684

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
